Chapter 1 - turning back

2

1 - turning back

Some one at school (same as before) pissed me off again, instead of beating him to a pulp and feeding him to my cat and little sister, I wrote another poem.

Every day I wonder

How is it that I live

When everything I know is black

And there's no turning back

To the life I once knew

All because of you

It's that same thing day after day

Why you're like this I can not say

But if you do continue through

Your life itself has left you no clue

Leaving you to wonder one in the dark

This will be your forever mark

As you wonder in the dark

I can see your pathetic mark

Upon the shame that you brought yourself

You never learn

You forever yearn

For freedom and light

But try as you might

For you never learn

And I will take a turn

With my back facing you
