Chapter 1 - Love for life

1 - Love for life

I met him one day.
I didn't know him well.
However something in my heart told me it was true.
Something in my heart told me to not let him go.
However life isn't always as you want it to be.
I dropped off the face of the earth for a while.
But I came back for one reason, to find him again.
I knew there was something different about him.
I just didn't know how to explain it.
By the time I found him again, he was already with someone new.
However things weren't going well.
So I stood by and listened to everything and learned a lot.
Soon I came to realize that the feeling I had for him was love.
It was the first time I was able to tell a man I loved him from the heart.
It was the first time I was able to say I wanted to spend my life with him.
He impacted my life in a few days in a way nobody ever has and ever will.
There was real heartfelt feelings there.
There were real emotions.
There was real love.
From the first interaction, I knew.
It was magical, even though it was in a very usual place.
There was just something that was between us, that neither could deny.
And not too long after that day an engagement came.
It was so far the happiest day of my life,
That is of course until the wedding, that is soon to come.
My heart is still bursting with happiness even this long after the engagement.
We both still have our days when we have troubles.
We both still have our days when we want alone time.
We both still have our days when we are at each others throats.
We both still have our days when we have mood swings.
We both still have our days when we want to bite each others head off.
However in the end our love keeps us together.
However in the end our love pushes us into another day.
However in the end our love lasts through it all.
And in the end we have a brighter tomorrow,
As long as we talk.

In honor of my fiance Billy,
With all my love, Sophie
